A GAME FOR LIFE

(Original.)

Two Union officers, prisoners of war, at Tullahoma, Tenn., were sitting in the jall yard playing euchre. A Confederate officer approached with a paper in his hand and spoke to them.

"Captains Ward and Greenway, I am ordered to select one of you to be shot in retailation for a Confederate of the same rank recently shot by the Federals at Murfreesboro under the false accusation of being a spy. Since you both come under the order you must draw lots to determine which shall suffer death."

The prisoners paied at this grim announcement.

"We have cards here," said the older man, Ward. "Let us play a game of euchre."

"Make it a rubber," said the Confed-"Barton," said the younger man,

"this is terrible." "It is only death," replied the other, which we often face in another form." Barton Ward dealt the cards, and the game began. The first game he lost by a point; the second he won by a

"Are you satisfied with the outcome?" asked the man in gray.

"I am."

"Come." The two Union officers embraced with emotion. As Barton Ward passed out of the jail yard to a file of soldiers standing in the street his conductor asked:

"Why did you give him the first and last games?"

"Because he is idelized by his mother, whom I revere, and his sister, "Sergeant," said the Confederate,

"march your men and the prisoner to headquarters." When the party arrived the officer entered the general's tent. The commander was sitting before a pine table with a scowl on his face. Turning he said gruffly: "Who are you and what do you want?" "I am Major Carnes and I wish your authority to insert the name of Capstant accompaniment of the raw fish tain Barton Ward on the order for which forms such a prominent part of the shooting of a Federal captain in Horse Shoeing a specialty. advance guard, pressing down the road to Tullahoma, passing hastily thrown up defenses, finally came to the main fortifications, behind which the Confederates had expected to defend the town, and found them deserted. Pressing on, they came upon the rear guard of the Confederate army and captured a body of men, among them the Union prisoners who had been in jall at Tullahoma. Major Carnes, who had charge of them, found the tables turned. Yesterday he was a jailer; now he was a prisoner.

"Captain," he said to Burton Ward. "I congratulate you."

"Major," returned Ward, "I trust that hereafter when you are ordered to shoot Union prisoners, you will be as particular in the drawing of your order as you have been in this case." Captain Ward made it his especial business to see that the man who had so nearly acted as his executioner should be treated with every kindness. Carnes remained a prisoner for some months, during which time he learned from Henry Greenway that Captain Ward was a rejected suitor for the hand of Greenway's sister, Alice,

Carnes said nothing about having noticed that Ward had purposely lost the games which had been played, with life for the stake, and when he was exchanged the secret went south with him undivulged. In the spring of 1865 the war was ended, and the Union armies marched home. Barton Ward met Alice Greenway; she relented and consented to be his wife. The wedding had taken place, and the bride and groom departed in the usual shower of rice. The same evening when they were alone the young wife said to her husband; "Barton, why do you suppose I married you?" "Because you loved me," said the groom, starting at the strangeness of the question. "I love you truly, but there is a reason why I would have married you even if I did not love you." "And that is?" She handed him a letter:

Petersburg, Va., March 3, 1865.
When Captains, Ward and Greenway played a game of cuchre with life the stakes, Ward purposely gave Greenway the game. When I asked him why he did so, he said, "Because he is idelized by his mother, whom I revere, and his sister, whom I love." whom I love.'

A pained look settled on the husband's face. "Are you sure that this is not gratitude rather than love?" be asked. "I am sure it is love, for no woman could learn of such a noble act in a man without loving him." JOHN TURNER WYETH.
